Gastroenterology for the Primary Care Provider

October 12, 2019 | The Ritz-Carlton | Washington, D.C.

This program aims to ensure participants are current with the latest topics in the field of gastroenterology as they relate to primary care. It will cover recent advances in diet and lifestyle changes as well as controversies around treatment of various GI conditions presented by GI experts. As new guidelines and treatment options are presented, they are coupled with recommendations for incorporating these updates into day-to-day clinical practice. This program offers a glimpse into the future of gastroenterology with engaging lectures by diverse members of the specialty to provide an interactive educational environment.
